Blinsky's Spell A-Ttractor

Spellcasting Focus

A one-of-a-kind toy imported from far-off Barovia made by the legendary toymaster himself!

Symbolizing all that is mighty – four wheels! Hydraulic… valves? Levers! Axles! And other things that tractors have!

This tiny device will help you attract powerful magic and steer it towards your foes, helping you reap just what you sow!

You know what they say:

Is no Blinsky? Is no fun!

Hat of Learned the Hard Way

There are many ways to learn a lesson (this way, that way…).

This hat contains the crystalized wisdom that can only be gained through painful trial-and-error (the fire and desire of youth, for instance).

Once donned, this hat cannot be removed by anyone besides the wearer. It looks damn snazzy, too.

Blade of Blamelessness

Rare Rapier, Light Weapon, Proficient

1d8 / 2d10 against fiends, undead.

No one knows whether this blade was forged in heaven or hell, but one thing is certain – it was designed to be driven straight through the heart.

An ultra-light weapon that still does impressive damage; if you play your part, this blade will play no games.

While you hold the drawn sword, it creates an aura in a 10-foot radius around you. You and all friendly creatures in the aura have advantage on saving throws against spells and other magical effects.

Shield of Love

This shield is nigh-unbreakable when held by a true believer. For one who believes in a thing called love will surely find protection in it.

This shield has a mind of its own, and will only appear to those who truly know its worth.

while held

+2 AC

Immunity to necrotic damage
